

Alvinston hosts 6,000 as pro rodeo comes to town

It was a weekend of rop'n and rid'n at the Alvinston Pro Rodeo. About 6,000 people were in the stands for three shows. Here are some photos from Friday's events. Rob Weese of Alvinston, top of this page, prepares to leap onto a calf as part of the Alvinston Rodeo's Steer Wrestling competition. Trickriders delight the crowd, left centre. A rider in the team roping competition takes a spill, bottom left. Blake Sanders of Brooke-Alvinston, center, heads toward the barrels during the Junior event. On page 16, Kevyn Cyr Longmoore, top right, competes in the Bareback Riding, placing third. Top Left, Austin Stewart of the Rawhide Rodeo amazes the crowd with his rope tricks while the bullfighters, Andrew Deschamps and JF Rooh distract one angry bull as the rider gets away. Bottom left, Alexis Paquin competes in the Junior Bull Riding.
